OVERVIEW

If you want to become a professional carpenter, all you need is a Residential/Commercial Carpentry Certificate. This prepares you for a lucrative and fulfilling career in carpentry making an average of $49,550/year.

If you like working with your hands and seeing things come together from start to finish, carpentry is for you. From planning to framing to completing, carpenters are involved in every step of a project.

In the planning stage, carpenters use their knowledge to assist with blueprint-making. No matter the purpose of the building (residential, commercial, industrial), a carpenter can make planning its construction way easier. During the construction phase, carpenters usually assemble the framework (walls, doors, and doorframes), making sure everything fits sizing and safety standards.

Master your craft and be proud of your work.
