OVERVIEW

If you're interested in becoming a legal assistant or paralegal, you can pursue a certification if you want to get started fast or an associate's degree for more specialized training. With an average salary of $46,690 per year, this is a promising career choice.

If you are highly organized and enjoy working in a team, a career in law is right for you. As a legal assistant / paralegal, you can work in any type of law firm specializing in something that matters to you. Whether that is criminal law, medical malpractice, family law, worker's compensation, or any other field of law, you can start a great career at York Technical College.

Legal assistants and paralegals are the boots on the ground at any law firm, doing research, contacting clients, and compiling data for lawyers. They need to be organized and efficient, with clients relying on them to deliver every day. Small law firms may have just a couple legal assistants or paralegals, but larger firms will have whole teams each with its own focus. With a 12% growth rate through 2030, this is a fantastic career to get into!

Be the boots on the ground at any law firm.
